In today's modern times, classic pieces of furniture are sometimes overlooked. One such piece of furniture overlooked is the mighty dressing table. A quality dressing table you can really help create a certain aesthetic in your room without having to invest in a lot of interior design schemes or other costly efforts to evoke a certain style. For some, it's hard to visualize what these look like, but for others, it's part of the old romanticized dressing rooms of old. For women, a good dressing table can provide additional lighting and surface area for the application of make up. If you have a small bathroom, or simply can't seem to have enough room for all your make up and applications, you can utilize a good table in your bedroom to serve as that purpose.

Before you go out and purchase any dressing table it's important that you take into account a few things. Taking some preliminary steps, will allow you to make an educated decision, and get a long lasting investment.

Make sure that you measure the space that you have free in the room. There are a wide variety of sizes that are available, and space constraints could foil your purchase. Make sure that you not only measure the length and width, but also measure the depth that you have free. By doing so, you'll ensure that your purchase is one of top quality and will easily fit in the space that you have free.

After you've measured the open space, look around a variety of furniture stores, and online for prices, to ensure that you get a quality dressing table. The most desirable and sturdy options are made of solid hard wood. Most often oak is the wood of choice, and while it is more desirable, sturdy, and has a higher quality, there are some downsides. The downside is higher cost, and heavy in terms of weight. It's important to look for a long lasting investment, and a solid wood option will last longer than a composite material option. Make sure you consider the weight, as it will be hard to move up stairs, and around your home after you've had it delivered or set into place.

There are a wide range of designs and options to choose from. There is no set school of thought in terms of design. In most cases, function trumps style, but that's not to say that you should just go with whatever works. Take a moment to look at the décor of your room and make sure you spend some time looking at what will accentuate your room, and not necessarily stand out or overcome the visual design. You'll also want to make sure that you purchase an option that either comes with a stool or is easily matched with a stool or seat, so that you're table is used often, and easily.
